Using the TheraWand to Treat Male Pelvic Floor Muscle Dysfunction

By Dr. Pamela Morrison Wiles, PT, MS, DPT, BCB-PMD, IMTC

The curved design of the TheraWand is perfect for ease of use intrarectally to treat pelvic floor muscle dysfunction. The TheraWand has been used as a sexual device to stimulate the prostate. Because of the brilliant design it has been employed as a massage tool by physical therapists and patients for those suffering with pelvic pain or sexual pain.

The TheraWand for transrectal use is narrower and tapered on one end allowing for easier anal insertion. Once inserted, the user can easily manipulate the TheraWand with the elongated handle to gently massage pelvic floor muscles that are tender, tight, or have myofascial trigger points. Users should use gentle strokes or sustained hold stretching with the TheraWand to perform the massage and pain relieving techniques to the pelvic floor muscles. Massaging scar tissue in the perineum or anus may also be beneficial to alleviate scar pain, sensitivity, or tightness.

The TheraWand is an excellent tool to treat pelvic floor dysfunction in men. Its design is what makes it effective and useful to alleviate pain. Its tapered end allows easy insertion. Once it is inserted the user can easily manipulate the wand using the elongated handle to gently massage pelvic floor muscles that are tight, tender and have myofascial trigger points.

1. Apply a generous amount of lubricant on the tapered end tip of the TheraWand.
2. Assume a comfortable semi-reclined position with your knees bent. An alternative position may be standing with one leg raised on a footstool.
3. Find your anus or anal opening.
4. Gently insert the tapered end into the anal opening and once inserted turn the TheraWand to the 9 or 3 o’clock position.
5. Orient yourself to the anal opening and pelvic floor muscles as a clock to identify painful or tight muscles.
6. Turn the TheraWand to the 9 or 3 o’clock position to begin strokes.
7. Since the pelvic floor muscles surround the anal opening, strokes are best performed from 11 to 6 o’clock and 1 to 6 o’clock.
8. Avoid applying strokes to 12 or 6 o’clock due to sensitive structures such as the urethra and prostate unless otherwise directed by your practitioner.
9. Perform gentle strokes for several minutes on each side until relief is felt.
10. The anal tissue is sensitive and thus the actual massage strokes make not be tolerated well. As an effective alternative, perform gentle sustained pressure holds on the muscles on each number of the clock. Only move the wand to get to the next muscle region or clock number.
11. Trigger point release and lengthening can be achieved by holding sustained pressure on the painful pelvic floor muscle(s) with the tapered end of the TheraWand.
12. Always use with caution and consult with a physical therapist that specializes in pelvic floor rehabilitation prior to use.
13. Consult with your doctor if pain or discomfort persists.
14. Use daily or how prescribed by your health care provider.

Useful for men with: Pelvic floor muscle dysfunction (i.e. pain, overactivity, shortening, trigger points), Rectal Pain, Prostatitis, Painful Scar Tissue, Sexual Pain, Anismus or Chronic Pelvic Pain

TheraWand is not responsible for the misuse of this product. We strongly recommend that it is used with the guidance of a physical therapist familiar with treatment of pelvic floor muscle dysfunction and pain.
